SUMMARY

Daniel Wetter is an artist, a cooking virtuoso and has also an appetite for composing and visualising new ideas away from home. As a multitasking feinschmecker from Venezuela it was an obvious choice to study at the AA – Architecture Association School of Architecture in London. If you don't find Daniel busy over a bloody steak or spellbound in a mushroom forest, you most probably find him immersed in the design of consumer strategies, end user centered development of products and services or busy in the making of new art installations. Daniel runs the design collective Dunderdog yet manages with lectures on new media. Daniel loves to ride, play tennis and enjoys sport activities out in nature during all seasons.
